

Feedback for Christmas for Kids Digital Show 'Phoebe's Green Christmas' - 2025

'I used it as a class resource and it has given Christmas a sensory aspect. It's been lovely to put the stem work in place and take the commercial out of Christmas using this totally inclusive resource' - Teacher, Scotland

'Engaging, good length episodes. We liked combining the idea of watching a screen with an interactive real world element.' - Teacher, South East

'The children came together and engaged with different classes from across the school. They loved the sensory elements to the story. The range of different elements to support the understanding and engagement with the story were fantastic' - Teacher, SEND School, East Anglia

'The characters were very engaging. The children were captivated by the story and caught on to the catchy songs , very quickly singing or humming along, caught up in the magic.' - Teacher, Scotland

'We did a lot of team building and friendship work through Phoebe's challenges. When we made home baking, each child made a biscuit , putting as much love and care as possible into their creation without knowing who it would be for. Only then did we pull the lolly pop sticks to decide who our secret Santa would be that day. It was a lovely way to promote the spirit of camaraderie in the class' - Teacher, Scotland

'This is the first time I have discussed how we can be more sustainable at Christmas with such young children. This can be quite a heavy topic for young learners but the programmes made it accessible in a fun and educational way.' - Teacher, Scotland

'An engaging sensory story for the lead up to Christmas. I liked the structure which was repeated in each episode - clear start and finish, and the children liked and engaged with the music' - Teacher, South West

'The characters were fun, friendly and inspiring. They were all very different and brought different strengths, just like all people but particularly neurodivergent people. My daughter enjoyed the making and singing alike, and loved the interactive elements' - Parent, South West

'My Autistic son loved the music and characters which is rare, it seemed to captivate him. It was so positive to find something they can engage with at home or at a time of their choosing' - Parent, South East

'As a special needs teacher the episodes were helpful in my planning for Christmas. Short and focussed with song repetition - very sensory.' - Teacher, Northern Ireland

'My non-verbal son really enjoyed the songs and was fascinated with all of the characters. He was very happy when watching it - smiling and laughing.' - Parent, West Midlands

'We enjoyed making the eco crafts together, discussing the environment and how we can help to look after our planet. Seeing Christmas as a time to enjoy together, giving thoughtfully (and the joy this brings) rather than getting' - Parent, South West
